Diversity & Transitions

artcommune's Young Artists' Show

Featuring an impressive and diverse range of artworks by 5 young local talents, Diversity & Transitions is a celebrative show that marks the year-end of 2013 for artcommune gallery. Included in this collective showcase are contemporary Chinese ink and colour paintings by Anthony Chua Say Hua, mixed-media works by Hong Sek Chern, and varying styles of watercolour scenes by Ho Sou Ping, Tam Kwan Yuen and Zhu Hong.

In recent years, artworks by Singaporean pioneer artists have been garnering critical acclaim within the regional art market, creating positive reverberations for our local visual art production. As quality artworks by established local artists continue to climb in status, it is vital that platforms and opportunities be made increasingly available for young or new artists to showcase their distinct talents. As a forerunner dedicated to the nurturing and promotion of Singapore art, artcommune gallery is extremely proud to represent these 5 young artists as they continue to develop and expand their portfolios.

Young artists primarily occupy an important yet transient position within the art market –en route to accumulating artistic mileage and support, most of their works remain competitive and affordable on the market; once a breakthrough in status is achieved, the price differentiation for a young artist's work becomes increasingly distinct and high in value. With over 20 pieces of paintings on display, Diversity & Transitions promises an eye-opening and affordable range of artworks that will prove to be both aesthetically tantalising and value for collection!
